Newsletter Issue 10

News... Thank you to the parents who attended the Reception RWI workshop. Your feedback was great and we hope to share more live lessons with you in the future! Thank you to Miss Gibbs and Miss McNerlin for setting this up. 😊 With this information, I hope you are able to see how we are aiming to create lifelong confident and fluent readers.

The KS2 children had a wonderful morning out at The Coleshill School this week, to launch our Children's University programme. We look forward to celebrating more enrichment activities with the children! Miss Harris will be sharing codes for children to add on themselves at home. Children's login details can be found in their reading record books.

Squirrels shared their History learning during their class assembly and it was incredible – we were still talking about it today! You definitely opened our eyes to the world of Baghdad and the power of BSL - Thank you!!!!

Rags2Riches – as a community we collected 101.3Kg of clothing. This raised £40.42 for the school. Thank you very much for your support.

Parents Evening – Please follow the link below to share your preference for parents evening – face to face or telephone. Slots will get released Tuesday 29th, once we have this information. Parents afternoon/evening will be held on 5th and 12th December.

I hope children have a wonderful 3 day weekend.

The euthanasia debate, centring around people with either a terminal illness or an agonising incurable condition, is a complex one that's been rumbling on for years. Of late, however, it's gained a new dimension on TikTok, with some content creators gaining popularity for suggesting that assisted suicide should be available to those experiencing severe mental health issues.

Some of this material, often referred to as MAiD (medical assistance in dying), has accrued millions of views and – more worryingly – hundreds of thousands of likes, along with many supportive comments. It's not the first time the platform has faced a dilemma over legal but potentially damaging content; this #WakeUpWednesday, check out our updated guide to TikTok.

What Parents Need to Know about TikTok

Around an eighth of the world's population use TikTok. Consider the scale of that reach, and that the app's demographic is heavily skewed towards younger people – with almost half (41%) of those users aged 16–24. TikTok itself advises a minimum age of 13 to access the platform (with certain features for over-18s only), but reports suggest that some children as young as 10 use it.

Given the youthfulness of its user-base, TikTok has faced numerous age-related challenges such as inappropriate content in videos, in-app purchasing and children being contacted by strangers on the platform. Updated for 2022, this week's #WakeUpWednesday guide tells trusted adults everything they need to know to help young people stay safe on TikTok.
