This week at school...

Helping Hands Workshop

Today children from Year 4 and 5 were an audience to the successful Loudmouth theatre production that educates children in appropriate relationships with others both on and offline. The production supports children in learning about safe contact with others, and explores difficult topics on abuse in a safe and gentle way. The content taught meets the national curriculum PSHE objectives as well as Safeguarding needs of our children.

New books from Scholastic! THANK YOU PARENTS

Every book sold at the school book fair contributes towards funds for the school to spend on new books from Scholastic. We just wanted to say a special thank you to all the children and families who bought a book at the summer book fair last academic year. Check out the new books delivered this week that are now available for the children to loan out from the school library.

Vulnerable Children's Lead - Ms Masters

We are pleased to announce that Ms Masters has been successful in the new appointment of Vulnerable Children's Lead at Curdworth Primary. Through this role we aim to drive our Vulnerable Children's strategy which commits to every child at our school experiencing equity, understanding, belonging and love. Ms Masters will work with our SENCo, Carolyn Evan's, school teachers, children and parents across the school.
